Fond du Lac Ten-Year Strategic Plan ready for community review

The 2010 Fond du Lac Reservation Strategic Planning process is in its final phase. Since February, more than 500 Band Members have provided input into a long-term plan to guide reservation decisions and development. Strategic Planning was confirmed as a top priority by Fond du Lac Tribal Leaders who participated in a Governance Analysis for Native Nations session in March 2010. In the past three months, the planning consultant has worked with planning staff to develop draft strategic directions for review and refinement by all band members.

The strategies represent the common themes and consensus areas that emerged by compiling the ideas from community meetings, focus groups, elders meetings, the Health Fair and Enrollee Day. In addition to the proposed directions for the future, the plan includes a collective assessment of how the reservation is doing now – its current strengths, existing plans and key challenges. The draft plan calls for the Reservation to focus on three primary directions in the next decade:

Direction I: Build Community Vitality

Priority Strategies:

- Enhance cultural heritage, values, practices and language use
- Foster reservation-wide cooperation and communication
- Structure community safety and accountability for behavior
- Expand transparency, citizen involvement and effectiveness of tribal governance

Direction II: Support Individual Self-reliance

Priority Strategies:

- Empower and nurture our children and youth systemically and as a community
- Build economic self-sufficiency through education and career support
- Develop housing options to meet diverse, inter-generational needs
- Enhance reservation health-care services

Direction III: Structure Sustainable Reservation Development

Priority Strategies:

- Diversify the economic base and available services on the reservation by supporting existing and new businesses
- Proactively support workforce development and employment policies or practices
- Continue strong management of land use, public spaces and natural resources

A detailed description of the draft strategies is available for review and public comment on the governance section of the FDL website or by contacting Jason Hollinday, Planning Director at JasonHollinday@FDLREZ.COM or by phone at (218) 878-2625.

All Band Members are invited to provide reactions and suggestions for refining the plan to the Planning Division by November 15, 2010.

The 10-Year Strategic Plan for the Reservation will be finalized, approved and launched by the end of December 2010.

2010 golf season busy and successful at Black Bear

By Dan Walker,
Black Bear Head Golf Pro

The golf season has ended, and it is now time to get ready for the winter activities. I have had the pleasure of working at Black Bear since early August and have been able to get to meet many new faces and look forward to meeting many more. The golf course has been very busy this fall and it is in beautiful condition. We have done approximately 14,800 rounds of golf this year; up slightly from 2009. New membership rates and rates for golf will be out soon.

Some new things you can look forward to for next golf season: We will be re-structuring our Thursday men's league, putting together a match play format with four divisions. Information should be out by the end of next month so you can get your teams together over the winter. Information regarding our couples and women's golf leagues will also be out shortly.

We will also be hosting a demo day, open to any golfer interested sometime in May. You will be able to come to the driving range and try out the latest and greatest equipment available for men, women, and juniors. Possible vendors that will be attending are Ping, Callaway, Taylor Made, and Orlimar. The date of the proposed demo day should be posted sometime in early March.

We will also be offering golf lessons with the new K-Vest teaching software. We are the only golf course in the Northland area that offers this service. It is on the cutting edge in golf instruction and provides a huge benefit to the golfer seeking advancement in their game. In addition to individual instruction, we will be putting together a junior golf program with instruction on Tuesdays and Thursdays, with play days on Fridays. Have a great winter, and I hope to see you next spring!

The mission of this publication is to provide the Anishinaabeg community of the Fond du Lac Band of Lake Superior Chippewa, Fond du Lac Reservation, with news and information that will be of help to them in their everyday lives. In addition, our goal will be to highlight many of the honors, accolades, accomplishments and awards that are earned by community members but are mostly overlooked by the mass mainstream media.

It is our hope that through greater information about the activities of our people, this publication can be an instrument of true community. It is not our intention to be a vehicle of divisiveness. To that end, we do not publish editorials, opinion pieces or letters to the editor. There is an abundance of opportunity for the publishing, airing and dissemination of material of personal opinion in other communication vehicles available throughout the area, region and state.

Our mission is to provide for Fond du Lac Anishinaabeg a publication that will not dismiss their culture, heritage, hopes and dreams. We are striving to make this newspaper fill that role.

Cloquet student visits White House

Courtney Jackson is not your typical 17 year-old. The Cloquet High School student has a 3.9 grade point average. She was also recognized in the May issue of this newspaper for her work in mapping Venus for a school science project by using Magellan radar data on a computer program.

Jackson's project took six months to complete, and her work has not gone unnoticed. She was selected to present her project at the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair earlier this year. Courtney's mapping project was selected as NASA's top high school project two years in a row at the National American Indian Fair.

According to Jackson, by studying the geology on Venus, we can learn important information about the geology and history of the Earth because the planets share some similarities.

"It's so important, particularly with the native community that they become leaders in science," said Diana Dalbotten, director of diversity programs for the National Center for Earth-surface Dynamics at the University of Minnesota, in a television interview at the Cloquet Middle School.

While home from school Oct. 14 because she was sick, Courtney received a call on her cell phone. The purpose of the call was an invitation for her to visit the White House to meet with President Obama four days later.

The President welcomed

Courtney and several middle school and high school students from around the country on Oct. 18 at the White House as part of the National Science and Engineering Festival at the National Mall, taking place in Washington D.C. and across the country.

She traveled to Washington to meet with the President, members of the science community, and Jamie Hyneman and Adam Savage, co-hosts of the Discovery Channel's "Myth Busters" television show.

"We welcome championship sports teams to the White House to celebrate their victories. I thought we ought to do the same thing for science fairs, and for robotic contests, for math competitions," the President said to the audience. "Because often we don't give these victories the attention they deserve. When you win first place at a science fair, nobody's rushing the field or dumping Gatorade on your head, but in many ways our future depends on what happens in those contests."

As far as her future plans are concerned, the Indian Education Program student is already taking a college physics course, and said that she would like to attend Penn State because they have a great earth sciences program. Courtney's long term career goal is to become a storm chaser or a volcanologist.

Newest online scams target potential renters

Police in Superior, Wis. are seeing online scams similar to others around the area in recent months.

Local businesses, including realtors are seeing official real estate listings from realty websites copied and posted to Craigslist and other marketplace websites such as EBAY.

In one instance a homeowner got a knock on his door and was informed by the people outside that they were there to take a look at his house. They told the homeowner the house was on Craigslist for rent, and that the owner had said he was going to be in Africa.

Potential renters were told they would get the keys for the property if they sent a payment to the scammer.

This isn't the first time online scams have been an issue in the Northland. According to the Superior Police Department, numerous complaints of online scams have popped up recently. Now they are offering ways internet users can protect themselves from scammers.

Authorities suggested dealing with local people you can meet in person, and said that it is wise to refrain from using money wiring services. Officials also urged internet users to keep financial information like bank numbers and social security numbers private.

Superior authorities said there are numerous legitimate postings online, but deals that appear too good to be true may very well be a scam.

If you have been a victim of online fraud, you can report it through the Internet Crime Complaint Center at IC3.gov. The story was published on the WDIO TV website.

Fitzgerald artifacts sold at Duluth auction

Thirty five years after one of the worst maritime disasters in the history of the Great lakes, four paddles from the Edmund Fitzgerald went on the auction block Oct. 5 in Duluth. When the bidding had ended, David Perkins of Duluth was the owner of the paddles, for $1,600.

"I had the final bid and it was my choice to take one or all of them, Perkins told the Duluth News Tribune. "I just held up my hand with four fingers, and you could have heard a pin drop in that place."

Perkins, a wood carver who makes spear fishing decoys, used to sail on Great Lakes ships in the 1950s and 1970s, said he thought the paddles should stay in the area.

Brent Loberg of Sellers Auction Company in Duluth swears the paddles are authentic, and said he has checked out the background stories from the sellers.

Loberg said that the artifacts were removed from the ship well before the sinking occurred, and were not taken from the wreckage site located near Whitefish Point in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

The Nov. 10, 1975 shipwreck in Lake Superior claimed the lives of 29 sailors, and a song of the tragic sinking of the Milwaukee based ship was made famous by Gordon Lightfoot.

Vote on Nov. 2

A statewide effort to mobilize the American Indian vote is under way again this year, 86 years after legislation giving American Indians the right to vote.

In the 8th Congressional District, DFL Congressman Jim Oberstar is facing a tough challenge by his Republican opponent Chip Cravaack. The 76 year old Oberstar is running for an 18th term.

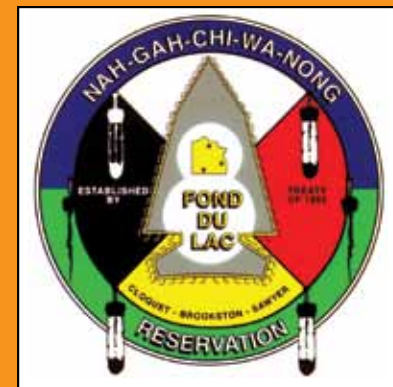

The race for Governor includes DFL Mark Dayton, Republican Tom Emmer, and Independent Tom Horner as the leading contenders.

Locally, voters in Carlton must vote on a referendum that would likely force the school district to close if the measure fails. Citizens in favor of keeping the district open are showing their support by putting blue ribbons on their car antennas and mail boxes.

Carlton voters must decide among eight candidates for school board. The candidates are Randy Schmitz, Brenda Tischer, Julianne Emerson, Stephanie (Bahen) Gibson, Howie Gunderson, Jill Hatfield, Timothy Johnson, and Robert Walton. A ninth candidate, Ryan Schmidt, withdrew from the race because he accepted a position within the district, but his name remains on the ballot.

In the Cloquet school board race, FDL Band Member Dan Danielson is running against five opponents for three school board positions. Danielson's opponents are David Battaglia, Sam Bolling, Sandra Crowley, Ron Gittings, Rose Scheuer, and Tracy Vargason.

A few thoughts from RBC members

From Chairwoman

Karen Diver

Great news! The National Indian Gaming Commission (NIGC) has decided to act favorably on the Band's request to review the Fond-du-Luth agreements to see if they are compliant with the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (IGRA.) Specifically, whether the payments to the City of Duluth violate the IGRA's requirement that tribes be the sole beneficiary of Indian gaming. The Chairwoman of the NIGC has directed that the Enforcement Division and Office of General Counsel review the agreements.

While not much can be said publicly regarding pending litigation, Band members should be assured that the Band has tried to engage the City for the last three years in conversation about renegotiating the agreements. In the most recent requests to Mayor Ness, he did not have the decency to respond personally; instead he had his lawyers respond. In his deposition it took him many questions to finally admit that he did not pick up the telephone to call me. If he was following the advice of his legal counsel, or if he decided this for himself, this is not leadership and that is unfortunate for the City of Duluth.

The bottom line is that the Band does not feel that the agreement complies with the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, and the City of Duluth doesn't feel that it matters whether the agreement is compliant. No matter what, nearly $80 million is enough for whatever the City thinks they deserve, and the dispute is about clarifying the agreement. The review by the NIGC will provide this clarity.

At this time, there is no truth to the rumor that the Band plans on closing Fond-du-Luth and run shuttles to Black Bear. That being said, it has been disappointing that the City of Duluth, who calls themselves our "partner", has chosen to use the Duluth media to mischaracterize the dispute in a direct effort to place pressure on the Band's leadership, to make us bend to their illegal demands. We reject that strategy. In its most favorable light this strategy is ill-advised; in the worst light it is no more than the City stirring up racial prejudices. They should be ashamed.

Last year, in recognition of the Band's growth through the years, it was decided that the Executive Director position would be split into two jobs: Executive Director of Programs and Executive Director of Enterprises. Since that time, the Executive Director of Enterprises has also been filling in as the General Manager of Black Bear. While this was fine for a short period of time, it did take attention away from our other businesses that the Band runs. The Band is currently doing a nation-wide search for a General Manager for the Casino.

Because of this, it was timely to look at Black Bear to see if the management structure there has kept pace with all of the growth that has happened with the addition of the convention center and expanded hotel and casino. With the input of a new general manager, we will be moving towards having directors' positions that have more focus: director of gaming, director of operations and director of marketing. We are hoping that this will give more focus to the operations and improve communication between the various departments within the casino/resort. We need to increase our competitiveness in the gaming market.

Election Day is November 2. There are many key races at the local, state and federal levels. Please vote!

From Ferdinand Martineau

To the Fond du Lac Band Members, I spent a few days in Wisconsin this past week working with the Great Lakes Indian Fish and Wildlife Commission (GLIFWC) on updating their strategic plan. It was very interesting and informative to be part of the process. I was involved in the initial plan and was quite surprised and pleased to see how the plan has worked for them. The plan set goals for the organization to achieve. It also gave us ways to measure the success of our efforts. The process made me think about my efforts here to try to become more proactive in the operation of our own organization. I realize that we are a lot larger than GLIFWC but, we can address our problems in much the same way.

We have been working on our strategic plan for the past 3 years. The work for the most part is done. It is a matter of putting it all together now. Each of our divisions has plans of their own that they follow to do their work and planning each year. The part that has been lacking is the overall plan.

When this document is complete, it will give us an overall strategy to govern the future development of our reservation. This should make it easier for the council to do their job.

We have been working on a restructuring plan for the casino. For the past few years we have tried to implement changes in our administrative structure with limited success. The restructuring will mean some changes in the top jobs initially but, there probably will be changes throughout as things develop. I will keep you informed as to the development as we proceed.

As summer comes to a close here on Fond du Lac the leaves are changing colors and falling from the trees. I can feel the crispness in the air with winter around the corner. It makes me think about what we have accomplished over the last year and what is left undone. I see a new resource management building, a new treatment center for the clinic, a new supportive housing complex, a road being reconstructed, a new assisted living facility and lots of people working. On the other hand I see a need for more housing, more jobs, roads that need improvement and more office space for some departments. I guess there is a bigger need for that strategic plan than I realized.

Again, I am always interested in hearing any new ideas, so please feel free to call me. My home number is (218)879-5074, Office (218)878-8158 or you can e-mail at ferdinandmartineau@fdlrez.com.

Boozhoo Everyone!
The Brookston Center adults traveled to Grand Portage for an overnight stay. The timing and the weather could not have been better. The fall colors were in full swing and they had a great time! Thank you for a great job by the Adult/Elder Coordinator Becky Salmon and her staff! Please continue to check the website for upcoming events and other trips that the staff members are planning!

I have received many calls concerning housing. We recently hired an additional crew to assist in getting the houses ready for families that have been assigned the units. Please be patient, we understand, and the Modernization Crew and the FDL Housing Maintenance staff are working hard to get the job done.

The Veterans Day Celebration is coming up soon. I would like to thank all the centers in advance for their contributions and assistance in honoring our Veterans. There was an article in last month's edition of the paper that explains the qualifications for the group of Veterans that will be honored with jackets at this year's celebration on November 11. We would like to say Miigwetch to all Veterans for their service, you are appreciated!

From Wally Dupuis

Hello all:
The Cloquet Community Center is continuing with programming for all ages. The staff has completed some painting and reorganizing within the center and things seem to be coming along well. The staff is currently planning and preparing for Halloween activities as well as continuing with the regular programming schedule. I would like to thank the staff for all of their hard work and willingness to adjust to different activities. Our golf pro is in the initial stages of starting a Jr golf program at the centers and I am hoping this will draw some interest and continue through the winter months.

The construction company is beginning to wind down for the season. They have completed the supportive housing project, the Tagwii outpatient building project, and are nearly complete with the Assisted Living project. At the same time, they have completed many of the individual sewer and water projects assigned to them. They will be working on the Moorhead Road project until the seasonal shut down.

It has truly been a very busy summer for our construction company. Along with all of the construction occurring locally, our CAIR building in Duluth is also in the process of being remodeled and updated. I am sure this project will be completed soon.

After many years with the Black Bear Casino, Ching LaFave, our security supervisor will be retiring at the end of the month. Thanks Ching, for all your service to the Black Bear and the Fond du Lac Reservation. Congratulations and good luck in your future endeavors.

I continue to hear from Band Members about their need for housing. As I have stated before, we have a limited number of homes and a long list of requests. We are renovating and filling available homes just as quickly as we can. I can only apologize to folks that have not been placed in a home, as our demand is much greater than our supply. Please continue working with our housing division to update your request.

Please call anytime with your questions or concerns. You can contact me at (218) 878-8078 (work) or (218) 879-2492.

On the Local Sawyer Scene:
Our community was saddened by the loss of two of our respected elders, Sylvia Blacketter Smith and Leo Peterson. Our sympathy goes out to their families. Sylvia was seventy-six and Leo was seventy-four. Congratulations to Melinda and Paul Peterson who were united in marriage at the Sawyer Chapel.

The Sawyer Center is still buzzing with a variety of activities. For Halloween a trip is planned to the Corn Maze in Wrenshall, and to the haunted ship in Duluth, in addition to a party at the center. A youth party and a teen party were planned by the youth. Forty attended the youth day event for children twelve and under. Many parents joined in with their children and fun was had by all. Teen Night had thirty in attendance. The teens, thirteen to seventeen year olds, brought their iPods and mp3 players with their favorite music for their mini-dance.

The adults are enjoying their tournaments held at the center along with outside activities. Bowling is becoming a favorite outside activity with the adults along with the Viking games. Rumor has it that after the sky diving experience last month, hot air balloon rides was the hot topic of conversation at the center. We will have to wait and see if there is any truth to this rumor.

Renewable energy project completed on the FDL Resource Management building; additional green projects possibly on the horizon

Bottom: Resource Management Environmental specialist Bruno Zagar (right) inspects the progress of the PV panel installation. The 12.25 kilowatt project is the largest of its kind in northern Minnesota, and the second largest solar array project ever installed by Conservation Technologies.

Story and photos by Dan Huculak

Workers completed the installation of the solar photovoltaic (PV) panels on the roof of the Fond du Lac Resource Management building Oct. 18, thus completing the final phase of construction on the first leadership in energy and environmental design (LEED) building anywhere in Carlton County.

In the wake of a recent announcement that Minnesota Power will increase rates by as much as 11 percent for consumers, adding solar energy sources makes more sense than ever.

Funding for the $102,000 project came mostly from grants by the U.S. Department of Energy. Cost payback for the solar electric panels should be reached in about 20 years. Estimates for cost payback range between 15-20 years, depending on industry sources.

"The building was designed to have a small impact on the environment, FDL Secretary Treasurer Ferdinand Martineau Jr. said. "It will be very energy efficient and will showcase energy saving construction methods in commercial buildings in the northland."

Although the 12.25 kilowatt PV panels won't provide enough electricity to power the entire 21,000 square-foot Resource Management building, the PV system will make a significant contribution. According to Conservation Technologies general manager Dave Danielsen, the energy provided from a project of this size could power about two average sized homes every year it is in operation.

The system is also grid-tied, meaning that electricity can be sold back to the utility company during periods when electricity used by the building is less than what is being captured by the PV system. Surplus electricity is never wasted; it can be stored, or sold and bought back as needed.

Why is solar known as green energy? Danielsen stated that the solar panels will reduce the building's carbon footprint, or carbon emissions by about 35,000 pounds per year compared to electricity generated by a coal burning electric plant.

Danielsen added that the two FDL solar PV projects installed by Conservation Technologies are the largest commercial solar energy project the company has completed in Northern Minnesota. The company installs about 15 solar energy projects per year for commercial and residential customers, and works in other areas including solar powered hot water heaters, building efficiency and insulation, and ventilation systems as well.

"We would like to thank the Fond du Lac Band for being a leader in renewable energy," Danielsen said.

But being a leader in renewable energy isn't just about solar energy. The FDL Resource Management Division (FDLRMD) is currently working on the completion a biomass energy study which, if implemented, could transform timber that would otherwise rot away in nearby forestry land, into a source of energy.

Biomass would not divert food sources away from human consumption like corn-based ethanol. Competition for corn crops around the country has resulted in price increases for some foods at the grocery store. The Resource Management division and the Planning division have teamed up to steer the biomass effort to a decision point for the reservation.

In addition to solar and biomass projects, the FDL-RMD conducted energy audits on all tribal buildings and Reservation-owned homes in cooperation with Minnesota Power and developed a database of energy efficiency measures.

The first lighting retrofits for FDL buildings have been estimated and allocated in the FDL annual budget and will save $50,000 per year. An exterior lighting retrofit project will take place in 2012 and will save an additional $50,000 per year.

One final "green" detail in the Resource Management building construction was the installation of charging outlets for electric vehicles. The Chevy Volt will begin reaching dealers as early as late November, and the Nissan Leaf will arrive in selected markets as early as December.

Red Lake waits (and waits) for BIA funds to arrive; brand new juvenile detention facility remains vacant Months before the tragic 2005 shootings that claimed the lives of 10 people, the Red Lake Band finished building a taxpayer-funded detention center for troubled youth.

Red Lake invested $300,000 of its own money to help build the $2 million center, as a response to a "youth crisis" of truancy, gang activity, suicide, and drugs that plague the reservation.

Today, the 13,000 square-foot, 24 bed youth center remains unopened and empty, except for thousands of dollars in furniture bought by the U.S. government.

When the feds came to Red Lake following the 2005 tragedy, they turned the facility into a temporary command center, adding to the Band's frustration regarding the unused and unfunded juvenile center.

U.S. Congressman Collin Peterson (DFL Detroit Lakes) asked about the Juvenile Center during a recent visit to Red Lake. Tribal Chairman Floyd Jourdain told Peterson that the Band recently prevailed in a lawsuit to force the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) to honor its commitment, but the Band has yet to receive the operations money from the BIA.

When Red Lake first obtained grants to construct the center, BIA officials wrote that the agency would be responsible for requesting operating funds for facilities built using the grants. Months before completion, the government signed an agreement promising the BIA would request $1.2 million in the president's budget, which would go mostly to staff. BIA officials later conceded in sworn statements that they never made the request.

The BIA apparently is not easily embarrassed or shamed as U.S. Senator Al Franken learned when he addressed the topic at a committee meeting in Washington, D.C. During the meeting, Franken held a photo of himself teaching to an empty classroom.

"You hope that you can take these kids and catch them before they become criminals, but then (the facility) is just sitting there," Franken told the Star Tribune. He added, "You just kind of shake your head and go, "This is dysfunctional."

Because the center never opened, judges now have little choice but to send many young offenders back to the streets. "Right now they just go out on the street and then go right back through the revolving door," said David Conner a member of Red Lake's self-governance team.

More than five years after the tragedy, Red Lake patiently waits. But the community will never give up the fight for their youth.

Information for the story was provided by the Red Lake Government Public Relations office.

Shinnecock Nation becomes federally recognized tribe

It took a few years, thirty two years in fact, since the Shinnecock Nation of New York began their quest to become acknowledged as a federally recognized Indian tribe.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs acknowledged the Shinnecock Indian Nation in June, but it was during a 30-day comment period following the decision that a group called the Connecticut Coalition for Gaming Jobs and a faction of Montauk Indians of Long Island filed legal challenges, asking the Interior Board of Indian Appeals (IBIA) to reconsider the Bureau's decision.

On Oct. 1, the IBIA rejected the appeals, ruling that neither group had legal standing to appeal the earlier decision.

"This closes a chapter in the tribe's 32 year long struggle to obtain recognition and opens a door to a bright future that will include new opportunities," Randy King, Chairman of the Shinnecock Nation Board of Trustees said in a press release.

Although the IBIA decision could still be challenged in a federal court, the Interior Department and the IBIA decisions are final, thus making the Shinnecock Nation the 565th federally recognized tribe in the United States.

As a federally recognized tribe, the Shinnecock are now eligible for federal funding for housing, health, and education. The tribe has been interested in opening a casino on Long Island for several years.

Settlement reached in Keepseagle case

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack and U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder announced on Oct 19 that the federal government has reached a $760 million settlement with the plaintiffs in the Keepseagle vs. Vilsack class action lawsuit, putting an end to an 11 year old case against the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA.)

The lawsuit alleged discrimination in access to and participation in USDA's farm loan programs. The suit was named for plaintiffs George and Marilyn Keepseagle of North Dakota, and was filed on behalf of thousands of American Indian farmers and ranchers.

U.S. Congressman Dale E. Kildee (D-Mich.) applauded the settlement announcement in a recent press release. Congressman Kildee is the Chairman of the Congressional Native American Caucus, and he wrote to Vilsack and Holder earlier this year urging a swift settlement in the case.

"With today's agreement, we take an important step forward in remedying USDA's unfortunate civil rights history," President Obama said in an Oct. 19 statement released by the White House.

Under the terms of the settlement, the USDA will pay $680 million in damages to thousands of American Indian farmers and ranchers, and forgive up to $80 million worth of outstanding farm loan debt.

The settlement also provides for initiatives that will improve USDA's farm loan services for Indians, including the creation of a Native American Farmer and Rancher Council, where USDA officials and Native American advocates will collaborate to make USDA's programs more accessible for Indian farmers and ranchers, a systematic review of farm loan program rules to improve accessibility to Indians, technical assistance to Native American borrowers, and the creation of sub-offices on tribal lands.

White Earth obtains funding for radio stations

The White Earth Band of Lake Superior Chippewa recently announced that a $466,000 grant was awarded for the purpose of creating two new FM radio stations.

KKWE will be the primary station in Callaway Minn., and KNKN will be a repeater station in Naytahwaush, serving a potential audience of about 30,000 people in the White Earth Reservation and the neighboring communities.

One unique aspect of the radio stations is in the fact that both will be wind powered. According to White Earth Chief Financial Officer Daryl Frazier, the goal is to have both stations completely powered by a wind turbine that will be going on line soon.

No target date has been set for the station's first broadcast. WGZS, the FDL radio station, is still expected to begin broadcasting some time during the first quarter of 2011.

Odoonibiig (Tullibee)

By Brian Borkholder,
Fisheries Biologist, FDL RMD

Tullibee (lake herring) have never been as popular with anglers as have such fishes like walleyes, northern pike, or trout, probably in part to their general disinterest in bait and preference for the deepest waters. When the water temperature dips below 50F, tullibeas congregate on shallow reefs and shallow bays for spawning activities. Eggs are broadcast over the rocks and gravel, where they remain until hatching the following spring. When this begins, tullibeas are now vulnerable to gill nets, and are targeted by a small number of avid herring fans.

There are many lakes in the 1854 Ceded Territory that have good populations of tullibee.

Look for deeper lakes, as tullibeas require colder water and high oxygen. Thus, lakes such as Big Lake on the FDL Reservation will not support good tullibee populations, but lakes such as Greenwood (Grand Marais), Hanging Horn (Barnum), Prairie (Cromwell) and Silver Island (Isabella) will. Lake herring make up the bulk of the commercial harvest from Lake Superior along the North Shore, a deep, clear, and cold section of the Lake. During recent years, commercial netters have removed an average of 350,000 pounds of tullibee from Lake Superior annually. Netting is not allowed on Lake Superior during the spawning season, however, in order to rebuild the herring stock that was overfished in the 1970's. The Resource Management Division has a list of lakes that FDL netters can net. Come in, get your permit, get a list of lakes, and enjoy fresh herring this fall. Netting for tullibee in the 1854 Ceded Territory opened in mid-October, and continues until mid-December.

Wicapi Oyate

By Annette Lee,
Saint Cloud State University

Wicapi Oyate is the Lakota word for "Star Nation". The original meaning of this word is "human flesh". Lakota tradition says that we are made from the guts of a dying star. In this case, two completely different avenues reveal the same knowledge: Native culture and Astronomy. The Native Skywatchers Project seeks out and celebrates indigenous people's connection to the stars - one of the few things that connect us all.

Math and science are elegant and powerful languages. They should be available and enjoyed by all. As a society totally dependent on technology, we have the responsibility to understand our world. Whether it is the electrons running computers, the photons carrying our cell signal, or the fossil fuels driving our cars, we need to understand the basics. On a deeper level, we must practice logical thinking. Our leaders and citizens must have plans and carefully consider the consequences to make good choices. There is a huge need to bring math and science back to the people. As an educator of twenty-one years, this is my goal! Astronomy is the one science that many people still are enamored with. Young and old people come to the planetarium with curiosity and excitement. Through Native Skywatchers we can create enormous change in math and science education and beyond.

Meeting a LaVierge Family Member and Wisconsin Point

By Christine Carlson

Speaking about Wisconsin Point for the Historical Society

On October 10, 2010, I spoke at the Douglas County Historical Society about Wisconsin Point and Ojibwe Ancestors. It was here that I met Karen and Ken Gregornik who drove 3 hours to meet me. I felt honored and we had such a meaningful experience. Meeting Karen, sharing my research about her great-great-grand-mother Angelique (LaVierge) Danielson and her great-great Uncle Joseph LaVierge inspired me to write this story.

Information from a pedigree chart from the reservation showed that Joseph Lavierge was born on January 1, of 1848, baptized on September 3, 1848 at LaPointe and died on March 31, 1929 in Superior. Joseph was the son of Gabriel Lavierge and Susan also known as Josepha Egomo who was born around 1820. Gabriel Lavierge was listed on the 1843 LaPointe payroll under Chief LaBoeuf (Buffalo).

Karen mentioned Gabriel was from a Metis family. Metis means a person of western Canada who is of American Indian and Caucasian ancestry. I went to the internet and put in the name Joseph LaVierge, LaPointe, Wisconsin. Several websites with Gabriel's name came up so I checked them out. There is a lot of information online so remember when researching, to look around the internet. Of course this takes time, but it may be worth your effort if you find something. I found the marriage and birth dates of Gabriel and Josepha Neganigijokwe as being December 2, 1838 in LaPointe, Wisconsin. Gabriel was born 1795, likely in La Pointe and Josepha was born 1813, likely in LaPointe.

The Old Village of Fond du Lac and Joseph LaVierge

While looking through microfilm one day at the Superior Library, I came across the obituary of Joseph LeVierge. He was born in the old village of Fond du Lac where I grew up. I was so happy to have found another old Fond du Lac village family. Joseph's obituary from the Superior Evening Telegram of April 1, 1929 reads, Joseph LaVierge, 85 an old settler of Superior, passed away at his residence, 3019 East Fourth Street at noon Sunday, following a two months' illness. He was born in Fond du Lac, Minnesota on January 1, 1844 and has lived at the Head of the Lakes all of his life. He lived on Wisconsin point 40 years and for the past 11 years he had lived at his present address in Superior.

Survivors are his wife, Mary LaVierge; three daughters, Mrs. Hiram N Young, Superior; Mrs. George Boyer, Superior; and Mrs. Frank Taylor, Grandview; five sons, Joseph LaVierge, Jr., Frank, Peter and Charles LaVierge, all of Superior and John LaVierge, Auburn Heights, Mich., and 18 grand-children and 11 great-grandchildren.

Searching for Information and Comparing Obituaries

When looking for information, ask to see LeRoy Defoe's Grave Registration Project at the Tribal Center Library. The women in the library are very helpful. Superior City Hall also has old records. I went to Duluth to look at the death index which can be found at the Duluth Court House which is the middle building in downtown Duluth. The information is found in the Record's Department which is Room 101. If you are unsure and may need help, call (218) 726-2559 and make an appointment with a volunteer genealogist. If you have a computer, you can go online. Go to the internet and put in St. Louis County, MN. Death Index and pick the approximate year and scroll down until you find the family name. If it is not there, the person may have died in a different county. I found the death dates of Angelique and George M. Danielson and then went to the Superior and Duluth Public Libraries and started looking through microfilm. The librarians at both of these places are also very helpful. It is best to check several newspapers. Sometimes the articles are similar but at times they are different, so if you have the time, look for more. I will now show the comparison of Angelique's different obituaries.

Angelique (LaVierge) Danielson Who Bakes Bread for Ore Discoverers

- This is part of the obituary found in the Duluth News Tribune of May 5, 1913. It reads, Mr. and Mrs. Danielson had the distinction of being the second couple married in Superior. They lived in Tower when the first ore was discovered on the Vermillion range. Mrs. Danielson baked bread for the original successful prospectors in that mineral country.

Shortly after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Danielson moved to Ontonagon, Mich., And a brief residence there was followed by their return to Superior. At the beginning of the Civil war Mr. and Mrs. Danielson were residing in Hancock, Mich., From which place he enlisted in the 27th Michigan volunteers and Mrs. Danielson returned to make her home in Superior. They also resided for a number of years on Minnesota Point.

Since the decease of her husband a few years ago Mrs. Danielson made her home with her children in this city. She has been strong and active for one of her years until a few weeks ago, when she commenced to weaken rapidly from the infirmities of old age. She is survived by a brother, Joseph Laveirg of Wisconsin Point, four sons, three daughters, and ten grand-children. Her children are Eugene C. Danielson, Mrs. Mary Drew, Mrs. Anna McCoy, continued on next page

J.A. Danielson, and C. L. Danielson of Duluth, Mrs. Josie Bell of Chicago, and P.B. Danielson of Superior.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at nine o'clock from St. Clement's church.

Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

• This obituary was found in the Superior Evening Telegram on May 5, 1913. It reads, Mrs. George W. Danielson, the second woman to be married in Superior, passed away at the home of her daughter Mrs. Mary M. Drew, 2004 West Superior Street, early Sunday morning.

She was born at the old trading post at Fond du Lac on the St. Louis River, and came to live in Superior in her early childhood.

P.B. Danielson of this city is her son and Joseph Lavierge of Wisconsin Point is her brother. She was 74 years of age.

• This is from the Duluth Herald of 5-5-1913. The obituary reads,

The funeral services for Mrs. Anjeleque Danielson, pioneer resident at the Head of the Lakes, who died Sunday will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the St. Jean de Baptiste French Catholic church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street. Burial will be made in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Danielson leaves 52 descendants. There are seven children; five of whom reside in Duluth, 35 grand-children and 11 great grand children. She also leaves a brother residing in Superior.

Obituaries Can Be Different

I wanted to show that I found 3 obituaries for the same person and each is a bit different. The one in the Duluth Herald of May 5, 1913 had a photo of Angelique. Her great-great grand-daughter Karen had never seen a photo of her so she was excited. Karen and her husband Ken went to the Calvary Cemetery in Duluth and were told Angelique was not buried there. There is also a Calvary Cemetery in Superior. The first obituary states that she was buried in Forest Hill. The other obituaries said she was buried at Calvary. It helps to be thorough when researching. It is a frustrating task at times but hopefully you will prevail. It is sometimes like a puzzle or better yet a process of elimination that you will eventually figure out. Keep the faith as some of your ancestors may be standing with you.

Joseph and Mary (Lemieux) LaVierge and Wisconsin Point

Joseph LaVierge testified in court cases for the Lemieux family who claimed ownership of Wisconsin Point. In 1920, Joseph was one of the oldest settlers in this section of the country. The case was against the Agate Land Company who retained possession to the area. The LaVierge family lived on Wisconsin Point for forty years and Joseph and his family knew the place well. Joseph's wife Mary was a Lemieux. The Lemieux's were a significant family in the history of Superior and Wisconsin Point.

1854 Treaty Papers Borrowed and Destroyed by the Bardon Brothers

The wealthy Bardon family lived in the Duluth, Superior and Wisconsin Point areas. They left behind some historical stories but we can't forget the unconscionable disappearance of treaty papers from the Ojibwe Chief Osagie. In the book "Forever Story" written by Tom Peacock, there is Document #20 written by several Fond du Lac Ojibwe in 1914 to President Wilson that I would like to quote.

Whereas, we feel outraged as to our property rights, secure, we thought by right of squatters claim and by right of adverse possession on extending over a hundred and fifteen years, and also as to our hearts, insulted and wronged by the doings of traitor friends and conspirators, the Bardon Brothers, who have borrowed our papers which were given to Chief O-sa-gie of our Fond du Lac Band in the treaty of 1854 with the Ojibwe and were destroyed and then our land was sold to various white men and then into the hands of the United States Steel Corporation.

Whereas, we do with horror contemplate being torn from the property of our fathers on Wisconsin Point, our dear honored dead removed and the sacred cemetery desecrated.

Charles E. Drew: Protesting Against the Removal of the Ojibwe

In 1914, Charles Drew was active with Attorney Frank

Withrow and the Fond du Lac Council against the removal of remains at Wisconsin Point. Charles was the son of Frank and Mary M. (Danielson) Drew. Mary M. Drew was also a well known member of the Fond du Lac Ojibwe.

The Superior Evening Telegram of September 12, 1914 stated, The Indians will also fight an attempt to make the 40 Indians now living on the point vacate the premises, according to Drew. "The Indians have never given that point up," says Drew, "and cannot be forced to move if they don't want to. "An attempt is being made to move the graveyard at the Fond du Lac reservation at Cloquet and also to transfer Indians living in the Indian village." Drew will go to Sawyer to attend Thursday's meeting. Other Chippewas from Superior and other northern Wisconsin points will also attend.

I hope you learned a little bit about research, Wisconsin Point and the LaVierge, Danielson and Drew families. I really enjoyed meeting Karen and Ken Gregornick and thank you for sharing some papers and your photo of Charles E. Drew.

The Man in the Green Hat, Part II: An Honor and a Privilege

By Chuck Smith

FDL Veterans Powwow Committee Chairman

My dad is still described today by some as the Man in the Green Hat. I don't consider that moniker as a slight by any means, but rather a term of endearment by those who had recognized him by his green hat. My dad passed away on January 19, 2009 and today the Smith lives are still forever changed....without him. It's been almost two years and the time has been hard and slow. People in the community continue to talk very fondly of dad and miss his presence in their lives, too. The stories that have been regaled by many of you of his skill as a hunter, marksman, bingo player and friend are most appreciated by our family.

My dad served with FOX Company 2/1 First Marine Division in the Korean War. He was an Ogichidaa in every sense of the word. He earned two purple hearts at the Chosin Reservoir during his tour of duty in Korea; a fact that most people weren't aware of because he chose not to talk about it. The war to him was very personal. Combat veterans generally don't talk of this experience and want to just try to forget this part of their lives. Dad was no different and kept the war to himself. As a Marine Vietnam Veteran, I understand why my dad chose to let the sleeping dog lie.

Ronald 'Chic' Smith

Post traumatic stress disorder for veterans returning home from the various wars and conflicts can create serious health problems if left untreated. Veteran Administration clinics and hospitals are now treating a large number of returning combat veterans for PTSD. Some of these veterans are well into their 80's. Don't let the sleeping dog lie -- if you are a combat veteran experiencing quality of life problems, seek help by contacting the VA or your personal physician. We who have served should not have to live with depression, anxiety, anger, chemical dependency and nightmares.

As I reflect on the words that I have written today, I consider myself a fortunate man. I have been blessed to have three men in my life I have called Dad, Ronald "Chic" Smith, stepfather Don Savage and father-in-law Harvey DeFoe. I love all of you for allowing me to be your son, especially you, the Man in the green Hat. Semper Fi, Dad.

Signed, the son of the Man in the Green Hat.

P.S. To all who have read this article, please acknowledge all our veterans by respectfully telling them "Miigwetch for serving."

Study: Hands-only CPR better in cardiac arrest cases

According to a study by the Journal of the American Medical Association, hands-only CPR can save more lives, compared to traditional CPR with mouth-to-mouth breathing.

The American Heart Association concurs, which is a change from the 40 year old method of chest compressions, combined with mouth-to-mouth breathing and pinching a victim's nose shut.

"Anyone who can put one hand on top of the other, lock their elbows and push hard and fast can do this," said Dr. Ben Bobrow of the Arizona Department of Health Services.

The hands-only approach to CPR simplifies an often confusing procedure. In emergency situations people sometimes forget how many breaths or chest compressions to give a victim.

Experts say that CPR with the combination of mouth-to-mouth and chest compressions is still the best method when treating very small children, victims of near drowning and drug overdose. In those instances, experts agree that breathing problems probably led to the cardiac arrest.

In a related story by CBS News, performing chest compressions at about 100 beats per minute is a good practice. According to the CBS news story, medical experts interviewed in the report suggested using the beat from "Stayin' Alive," the 1970s disco hit by the Bee Gees as a guide. The rapid drum beat in the song resembles the recommended number of chest compressions per minute.

Minnesota’s Cold Weather Rule took effect Oct. 15; things you should know during fall and winter months

Winter is just around the corner. Minnesotans who are struggling to pay their heating bills are reminded to contact their local utility company right away.

Minnesota’s Cold Weather Rule protects residential utility customers, including seniors and families with children from having their heat shut off during winter months.

The rule requires electric and natural gas companies to keep the heat on through April 15, 2011 for customers who make and keep up to date on their payment plans. Utilities offer a variety of bill payment options that allow customers to spread their payments out over several months. Customers that need to reconnect their heat for this winter should call their utility company now to discuss payment options.

Delivered fuels, such as propane, wood, or fuel oil are not covered by the Cold Weather Rule.

To qualify for protection, consumers must contact their utility to set up a payment plan.

The Cold Weather Rule is administered by the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission. The Commission regulates the rates and services of electric, natural gas, and telephone companies. Visit the Commission’s website at www.puc.state.mn.us for more information.

Energy Assistance is now accepting applications for the Oct. 2010 – Apr. 2011 heating season

As of Oct. 15, the Energy Assistance Program office has received 227 fewer applications for energy assistance compared to last year. If you have not applied this year, please do so as soon as possible.

Funds are not guaranteed to last. This is an income based program so feel free to come in or call to see if you may qualify.

If you know somebody who may need assistance, please call Tammy at (218) 878-2603; Joan at (218) 878-2658; or stop by the FDL Tribal Center, at 1720 Big Lake Rd. in Cloquet.

Changes proposed for Transit Department

By Jim Kyle
FDL Transit Manager

The Fond du Lac Transit Department will be going through several changes in the coming months. With a new manager in place, there will be adjustments in how our riders will be able to better utilize FDL Transit Services.

Some proposed changes include relocating the department; new uniforms and name tags for easy identification of our dedicated drivers; and an upgrade of the communication system that will be more user-friendly as well as simplifying how transit deploys drivers to locations more efficiently.

Driver alert (How’s My Driving?) decals will be posted on the back of buses to provide the general public opportunities to report any concerns with FDL Transit driving practices. There has been discussion about the effectiveness of the current on-call process and the waste it may be incurring upon the system; burdening the budget and ultimately causing possible system failure.

Therefore, the suggestions have been to create a dedicated routing system (DRS) that will provide a wide range of services based on a dedicated route similar to how larger metropolitan systems such as Duluth and Minneapolis public transit systems operate.

Management would like to know your opinion on the on-call versus the DRS system. A phone number has been set-up for riders to call-in and leave messages about the quality of services they are receiving. The number is (218) 878-7501; it is available 24 hours, and responses can be expected the next business day. Compliments as well as concerns are welcome.

The people at FDL Transit are making strides to improve services across the board; to make your trip safe and timely. We appreciate your comments and look forward to providing our community with quality transportation that surpasses industry norms, both now and in the future.
